Appeal for Unity

City Liberals Criticize

Alberta Council's Action At Meeting in Calgary

Strong criticism of action taken by the general council of the Liberal Association of Alberta, at a meeting in Calgary on June 12, was voiced in Edmonton Wednesday night at the annual meeting of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association, in the 103 street I.O.O.F. Hall.

The Calgary meeting had passed a resolution expressing readiness to co-operate with all parties and groups opposed to the present government, through the offices of Independent Citizens' Association, and it was this resolution that drew fire from Edmonton Liberals.

Some speakers at the meeting stated the party should be true to the principles of Liberalism, and should select its own provincial leader, and then choose its own candidates for elections.

Millionaire Dies

The 40 persons present heard reports from those who had attended the Calgary meeting, passed a resolution thanking city delegates who had attended that meeting "for what they had done for the Liberal party," deferred election of officers until later, appointed a committee to study the actions of the Calgary meeting, and passed a resolution of disavowal, and appeals for Liberal co-operation with the independent party for the present.

The proposed co-operation with the independent party was said, on the part of thought of disavowal, and it was said the independent party admitted it could not win a provincial election without Liberal support, and that the Liberals could not win by themselves.

MEETING CHAIRMAN
Chairman of the annual meeting, which was adjourned until September 6, was J. Roy Macdonald, K.C., who acted in the absence of Neil D. Maclean, K.C., president, and C. H. Grant, K.C., secretary.

First part of the meeting was given over to reports by those who had attended the Calgary meeting.

Those reporting were: Gerald O'Connor, K.C.; Hugh John Macdonald, K.C.; M.L.A. Dan Lynch; James Morrison; Major Nellie V. Buchanan, M.C.; and P. T. O'Connor.

Mr. O'Connor declared he was in favor of the co-operation motion. He pointed out that with the exception of Mr. Macdonald and himself, all the Edmonton delegates had opposed it.

"I was in favor of that motion and I still am," he said.

Seven who opposed the co-operation motion told their views to the meeting.

DEFEATED CANDIDATE
Mr. O'Connor recalled that at the last election he had suggested a "Citizens' slate" but this had not been adopted.

"If anyone here has a complaint to make, I'm the one," he said.

"The independent candidate told us that without Liberal co-operation they could not win," Mr. O'Connor said.

"And the Liberals cannot win without them," he said.

For many years the Liberal party in Alberta has travelled down this road, and has had no leadership, Mr. O'Connor declared.

"If there is no co-operation, then the Social Credit party or the C.C.F. party will be in power for another five years," he pointed out.

"The independent slate could win," he said.

Using Nearly Half-Million Men

Gains in Russia Cost Germans Heavy Price

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW, July 8.—The Germans, hurling nearly a half-million men and thousands of tanks and planes against Soviet defences in a do-or-die bid for a breakthrough, inched eastward in the Belgorod sector today as the blazing battle of the southern front went into its fourth day on a crescendoing scale.

A German communiqué broadcast by the Berlin radio said that Axis troops had broken through deeply-fortified Russian positions near Belgorod and south of Orel and destroyed more than 400 Soviet tanks in heavy battles.

Front dispatches said the Nazi high command was rushing fresh reserves into battle without pause.

Replacements of 30,000 men, 1,500 tanks and 600 planes lost in the first 72 hours of assault along a 150-mile stretch of front between Belgorod and Orel.

GAIN AT HIGH COST

For the third straight day, field reports disclosed, the Germans scored slight net gains in the Belgorod area, but at a heavy cost.

Where they achieved a decisive breakthrough, and farther north they still were stymied by a stone-wall defence in the Orel area.

Headlines of losses that exceeded in ratio even those before.

Hanna Seeking Water Project

Post-War Era

A $30,000,000 post-war irrigation project is expected to be urged upon the Alberta legislative council by the Hanna Board of Trade, when representatives of that group appear before the reconstruction committee July 14.

It is understood the Hanna subcommittee will ask for a irrigation scheme estimated to include 90,000 acres, at a cost in the neighborhood of $30,000,000.

This proposal was made originally a number of years ago by William Pearce of Hanna, who suggested that the North Saskatchewan be cleared and Red Deer rivers be made to distribute water through natural and artificial channels, through an area south of the city of Edmonton.

Red Deer river, mainly for drainage, is now used in industry.

Home on leave for the first time in four years, Able Seaman Jim Doyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Doyle, 10422 92 street, has harvesting tales of his years of service in action with the Royal Navy.

AB Doyle left Edmonton in 1939 and served in England the day before war was declared. He enlisted in the Royal Navy immediately, and since then has travelled 185,000 miles by sea.

In May, 1942, the cruiser H.M.S. Edinburgh, on which he was serving, was torpedoed while on convoy duty, and he was rescued by a lifeboat.

The ship was hit by four torpedoes and numerous shells during the battle. The ship was destroyed, and the crew was scattered.

Before sinking, the ship was hit by a German destroyer. One of the destroyers was hit by a salvo of shells from the cruiser before it sank.

Damage totalling $22,000, none of which was covered by insurance, was caused by a bolt of lightning which struck the big repair shop of the Butler and Hawkins firm at 119 street and 106 avenue during the violent storm of Wednesday night. It was the worst electrical storm of the current season in this city and district. Flames shot 60 feet into the air and the blaze was witnessed by a large crowd despite the fact that it started around midnight. The structure was completely of wood. The above picture shows the extent of the damage caused by the fire to the building.

Abitibi Company Appeal Allowed

By SCOTT YOUNG

LONDON, July 8.—(CP)—The Privy Council's judicial committee today allowed the appeal of the Abitibi Paper and Paper Company Limited, from the judgment of the Ontario appellate court and Mr. Justice W. E. Middleton who directed that assets of the Abitibi company should be sold at public auction.

In addition to directing the sale of the assets, Mr. Justice Middleton also held that the Abitibi Paper and Paper Company Memorandum Act, passed by the Ontario legislature in 1941, was ultra vires of the legislature.

The orders of Mr. Justice Middleton and the Ontario appeal court were set aside by the Privy Council's judicial committee and the motion for sale was dismissed.

The additional plaintiff, the Montreal Trust Company, was ordered to pay the costs incurred by the Abitibi company not only during this privy council appeal but also during the previous litigation in the Ontario courts.

Make Surpriser Landings

American Troops Close in On Important Munda Base

By BRYDON C. TAVES

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, July 8.—American assault troops drove inland from new bridgeheads less than six miles from the Japanese air base of Munda on New Georgia Island today following a shattering nine-to-one United States naval victory in the Kula Gulf.

Munda and the Japanese supply port of Barakoa harbor, 10 miles to the north, were the two objectives of the Americans following surprise landings on both sides of the bay.

The enemy forces on New Georgia apparently were isolated from supplies or reinforcements, and were being engaged by the Americans along the Barakoa river east of Munda.

Nine and perhaps 13 Japanese troops and destroyers were destroyed by American warships in a little more than 30 minutes of actual fighting.

Monday's action was a continuation of the Japanese warship was damaged to complete a clean sweep for the American forces—the sinkings of the Japanese ship.

With Japanese garrisons on New Georgia Island apparently cut off at least temporarily from supplies and reinforcements, U.S. Army troops and marines were believed preparing to strike a knock-out blow against Munda on the southern shore and the main enemy base in the central Solomon Islands, and against the supply port of Barakoa harbor, 10 miles to the north.

MacArthur disclosed that ground forces swept across the five-mile-long island between dawn Monday and seized a bridgehead at Zanana, only six miles east of the Munda airfield.

Later American patrols contacted the Japanese along the Barakoa river.

HIGH PRAISE

Of the Russians, he has only the faintest knowledge of the language to travel, fortune, and appreciation for leave-laid supplies. They are especially grateful for the tanks and aircraft being sent to them from Canada and the United States, according to the sailor.

The sailor said he was able to learn enough of the language to get along. During his stay in that country, he ate only barley soup and black bread, with an occasional fish meal. The sacrifices of the Russians are magnificent, he said.

Smuts Confident Government Won

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, July 8.—(AP)—Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts said in a statement today "there is every indication the people rallied to the support of the government and the war effort" at South Africa's general election yesterday.

The vote was heavy and Smuts' coalition government probably doubled its majority, which was 22 in the old parliament, observers said. They estimated that about 100 pro-war candidates were elected against 50 isolationists.

The official results probably will not be tabulated for two weeks.

Dieppe Hero Wins Second Decoration

OTTAWA, July 8.—(CP)—Defence Minister Malcolm Macdonald announced award of the Military Cross to Capt. William Harold Victor Matthews of Milne's Landing, B.C., and the Military Medal to Sgt. George Alfred Hickson, D.C.M., of Kitchener, Ont., for "gallant and distinguished services in North Africa."

Hickson, who was the British garrison commander at Milne's Landing, was the first Canadian soldier to be awarded the Military Cross for two battle decorations.

Citations covering the North African awards were not made public until today.

Capt. Matthews and Sgt. Hickson were attached to various British units in North Africa for battle training.

Clothes Ration

LONDON, July 8.—(CP)—Britain will get a maximum of 48 clothing coupons and a minimum of 36 for the next 15-month rationing period starting Aug. 1, Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, told a press conference yesterday.

Death Probed

Sir H. Oakes, Wealthy Mine Magnate, Dies

NASSAU, Bahamas, July 8.—(AP)—Sir Harry Oakes, one of the richest men in the world, died at his home here last night.

The body was found this morning, and officials immediately launched an investigation.

At Miami, Fla., The Daily News said Detective Captain James J. Baker and Captain E. W. Meichen of the Miami homicide squad had been summoned to Nassau this morning on a secret mission.

Oakes, who was made a baronet in 1908, was born at Bangorville, Dec. 22, 1874.

He formerly was president of Lake Shore Mines and had many other connections with the Canadian mining industry.

His Canadian home was at Niagara Falls, Ont. Several years ago he moved to the Bahamas.

Oakes, whose fortune has been estimated as high as $200,000,000, was a member of the Nassau Club, and was the largest real estate owner on the island of New Providence.

Defer Action on City's Insurance Plan Pending Study

I Saw Today Mayor Denies Evict Persons City Property

The City of Edmonton has not evicted, nor does it intend to evict any tenant of city owned property, Mayor John W. Fry stated Thursday.

He was commenting on statements prevalent throughout the city that tenants of city owned property had been evicted.

Not only has there been no evictions from city owned property, stated the Mayor, but in cases where evictions have occurred all possible help has been given those disposed to find alternative accommodation.

He said also that the city had assisted financially the operation of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce. This bureau, he said, had been a splendid job in finding lodgings and dwellings for a great many families.

New Forms Ready At Ratton Boards

TIM BUCK

Mention the name of Tim Buck in any part of our vast country, and you speak of a familiar figure on the Canadian scene. For Tim Buck symbolizes a fundamental forward-moving trend in our national life that has constantly grown as a dynamic unifying factor in the people's struggle for a better way of life and behind the national war effort.

Tim Buck, who was recently named chairman of a national initiative committee for the formation of a new party of communists, will address Edmonton citizens at the Moose Temple, Friday, July 9th at 8 p.m. on the subject—

"Why a New Party of Communists?"

Tim Buck, "...who recently rose before the National War Labor Board to present the outstandingly finest brief that has been submitted. Its merits lay in its clarity, scholarly documentation, thoroughly adult attitude toward a complex problem on which it endeavored not to vituperate but to shed light. It was aimed not at the overthrow of democracy but at the establishment of a realistic, comprehensive Dominion Labor Code."

Edmonton Regt. Messing Draws Great Praise

The Messing arrangements of the 2nd Reserve Battalion, Edmonton Regiment, now being made at Sarcus Camp, south-east of Calgary, are causing the most interest in the entire camp, according to information reaching here Thursday. For this the battalion quartermaster, Capt. C. T. W. Miller is receiving a large share of the credit. He is directing the arrangements under the supervision of Lt. Col. A. L. Walker, H.A.C., officer commanding.

And messing arrangements are among the most important things at a camp. When the bugle sounds "Cook House" and the cook and the cookery crew "line up" the boys are "right there" and "wait" to get their "kiss" and it happens they have only recently returned from a long route march. A fact which makes a mess of the rifle ranges, they are in the best of form to appreciate the "delicacies" placed before them.

There are seven messes placed side by side to make a mess hall of canvas that looks on the inside like a large green tent. Tables and benches are each day, each table names an officer who goes to the cook house and brings the food for the men at his table.

At a strength of 25 officers and 300 privates the 2nd Reserve Battalion, Edmonton Regiment is now at Sarcus Camp. The members have already taken rifle and bayonet drill, fieldcraft and first aid, practical marksmanship instruction in two and three-inch snipers, and have been through a gas training.

RESPIRATOR DRILL
The men of the unit were given instruction in the use of respirators then put through the drill.

The Edmonton Regt. has organized a messing crew under the supervision of 2nd Lt. A. L. Walker. The members are Capt. A. D. Simpson, H.A.C., and Capt. M. R. McGee, Sgt. G. Foxall and Sgt. M. McGee.

Underwriters Delegation Submits Brief in Reply To Commissioners' Report

Consideration of the proposal that the city carry its own fire insurance was postponed by the members of the city council finance committee Wednesday when representatives of the Insurance Agents' Association of Edmonton stated that they had not had sufficient time to study the city's proposals, and were not in a position to present to answer certain proposals made verbally at the meeting by aldermen.

The delegation members were asked to supply information as to whether or not the fire insurance companies would be prepared to establish an insurance classification for municipal buildings, and set rates on this classification of insurance.

The members requested also to obtain information on whether or not insurance companies would adopt an insurance policy under which a stipulated figure of loss would be deductible from the limit of the present automobile insurance.

READY TO CO-OPERATE
Thomas Magee, president of the Insurance Agents' Association of Edmonton, said that the feeling of members was that "they frankly want to work with the city representatives to the end that a solution may be arrived at in the best interests of the citizens."

In a five page brief the past insurance experience of Edmonton is reviewed, and it was pointed out that the insurance underwriters have steadily reduced the premium rate charged during the past 20 years from 41 to 16 on the $100,000 fire insurance.

The association submitted the following in reply to certain aspects of the commissioners' report:

Page three of the report states: "The insurance companies, or rating boards, should submit a statistical classification of cost experience data for various classes of risks as a basis for establishing the equity of class rates."

Women Won't Talk

By RENE WYRON MART

CHAPTER XXVI
"That you let me handle this at first from now on."

It would be sure for a week. And to think I was going to have the big hand! Here for a grand-salon!

Nation had collapsed on the pavement, his head between his hands. Suddenly he lifted his head and looked at me with a new suspicion hardening his eyes. "Where's the proof—have you any proof of that?"

I nodded emphatically. "I'll show it to you." I admitted grudgingly. "First, though, you'd better get rid of that poisoned cocktail. Throw it in the fireplace."

He started to rise, then settled back in his seat and looked at me shamefacedly. "It isn't poisoned. I was just bluffing."

It was my turn to glare at him. After a moment I snapped, "Hand it here, then. I need it."

He got up and handed me the drink and stood there watching me drink it, still with that shamed little boy look on his face. "I guess there isn't anything I can say to you," he ventured at last. "You'll never forgive me."

I set the cocktail glass down and looked up at him, six feet of domineering, stubborn, bumbled manhood. Michael had been big. I like big men, I said.

"Did you mean what you said about marrying Kathy?"

He started at me. "Do you think I'd have taken a chance on killing you to clear her if I didn't mean it?"

I felt my neck. I guess he meant it all right. "It would be awkward not speaking, wouldn't it, if you're going to be in the family?" I said thoughtfully. "I suppose I'll have to forgive you on one condition."

"What's that?"

"I want you to tell me the whole story about Kathy and Derek."

He looked at me for a moment, then said, "I'll tell you everything I know about it. But you must promise not to tell anyone else."

"I promise," I said.

"Well, then, I'll tell you the whole story. It's a long one, but I'll tell you everything I know about it. But you must promise not to tell anyone else."

"I promise," I said.

"Well, then, I'll tell you the whole story. It's a long one, but I'll tell you everything I know about it. But you must promise not to tell anyone else."

"I promise," I said.

statement to the press, and that was that. For it was Margaret who killed Derek. Margaret who took the incriminating wallet and money and ran from the body and buried them in the woods that night. Margaret who hid the shirt, who blundered into me on the path in the dark. Margaret who tried to take her own life by drinking the sleeping medicine.

For it was Margaret who must have been so torn between divided loyalties that she temporarily lost all reason. Margaret, whose fear of what Derek might do to Kathy was balanced on the same side of the scales as her fear of what the law might do to Derek. Margaret, the beautiful, who could not bear the thought that harm or the threat of harm would come to Kathy. The Kralks and Margaret who dreamed to see the wild, temperamental Derek become a shy, blundering thing. To her deranged and clouded mind there must have appeared only one solution. She'd seen the gun in my desk drawer that day when she loved my letter file. She carried it under her black shawl when she went out to Derek's goodbye. She shot him through the heart when he bent to kiss her. God rest her poor old soul!

McCoy Health Service

A round-shouldered person is like one in heavy chains, which bind the body in a bent-over shape. However, instead of the chains being iron bars, they are muscles which hold the shoulders in the wrong position. The important thing to remember in mind is to use the exercises which develop greater strength in the muscles which pull the shoulders back. Take enough exercise of the right kind for a long enough time and the shoulders will begin to improve.

Those who are round-shouldered have front muscles across the upper back which are stronger than the muscles across the back and the result is that the stronger front muscles pull the shoulders forward. Before you can expect to bend the shoulders back in an erect, attractive position, you must increase the strength of the upper back muscles to such a degree that they balance the pull of the front muscles.

In developing a splendid pair of shoulders you will need no expensive equipment. You will be able to do it with simple exercises taken in the privacy of your own home, using the muscles which you have in the arms, upper chest and upper back. Arm movements which call for an arm and hand backward view of the arms are especially good.

An excellent exercise is to lie face downward on the floor and raise the head and shoulders, lifting the head as high as possible. Take this exercise only a few times at first until the muscles increase in strength.

You will find it a good plan to take deep breathing exercises which bring the chest well to the front. When you push yourself in the chest as you take a deep breath you will see that it expands the chest, pulling it up and automatically throwing the shoulders back.

You are going to find there is a close connection between good strong shoulders and a good chest. In fact, they are really two sides of the same question. Most of the movements which improve the shoulders likewise help the chest. Women who strengthen their chest will find this improves the carriage of the body and enables them to wear clothes to better advantage. Men who use such exercises will gradually develop better muscle tone, which means better strength and endurance.

A later shoulder development may be obtained by swimming, tennis, canoeing, boxing or wrestling.

Before ordering a regimen designed to build a good-looking pair of shoulders it is a good plan to visualize in yourself exactly the type of development you desire. See the shoulders from all angles and make that picture as plain as possible. Then start doing everything you can to make that picture come true.

As you breathe deeply, think of developing a better pair of shoulders. As you walk, keep the body erect and the shoulders flat. As you do your exercises, think of the attractive shoulders which will be yours when you are athletic, still think of the shoulders and keep the spine straight and the shoulders back. Keep on exercising and thinking all during the day, of a good pair of strong shoulders and you will receive your reward.

In the meantime, send for my article, called "Overcoming Round Shoulders" which outlines some good exercises for you to follow.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address: McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Salvage Work on Liner Normandie Nearly Completed

NEW YORK, July 8.—AP—One of the greatest salvage operations of all time, the raising of the former French liner Normandie, apparently started competitive yesterday as workmen started construction of an observation platform from which the raising operation will be watched by naval and other officials.

Further evidence leading to belief salvage was almost completed was seen in the removal of sharks and lobsters on the vessel's hull. The $100,000 Normandie sank over 30 miles off the Hudson River after being damaged by fire Feb. 8, 1930.

Naval officers at New York were trained in the raising of the liner.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED
Once the child has established good habits of eating, good toilet and sleeping habits, their abandonment bewilders the parent:
She cannot imagine why Ellen, who has been feeding herself so ably, suddenly should demand to be fed. Why has Freddy, who was exemplary in his toilet habits, now become completely uninhibited and attack against everything related to the toilet? Why should Rob, who slept calmly through the night, at 2, now at 3, be waking once or twice at night, and crying or be only the normal pattern of habit growth. A habit may seem to be established, then it is completely disrupted, then it is established again.

A day by day record of the child's behavior would indicate plainly all habits follow such uneven courses. Nothing, positively nothing in childhood, remains unchanged. Each six months of life shows some alteration in the child's behavior and these fundamental

While every parent should endeavor to keep habits functioning smoothly, she should not be too discouraged when there is a disruption of them. It does not mean that Ellen will have to be fed from now on, indefinitely, nor that Freddy will never again be responsible for his toilet behavior or Boo sleep through the night.

Help Ellen again. Try counting: one when you give her a spoonful and two when she takes one herself.

As for Bob, it is interesting to know that the afternoon of the day after the accident was a "cloudless, brilliant day," and that he "had been out for a long time" when he fell. He was on his feet again in half an hour, and he was on his feet again in half an hour, and he was on his feet again in half an hour.

Defer Action On Insurance Plan For City

The commissioners were evidently not aware that the Western Canada Insurance Underwriters' Association has maintained such a record over a period of years.

2-The report further states that municipal property should be classified as preferred risk, and given the benefit of reduced rates where adequate cost experience data shows that existing rates are inequitable. The Western Canada Insurance Underwriters' Association has always classified municipal property as a preferred class, and the table of rate reduction shows that rates have been steadily and voluntarily reduced.

3-It is not proper to regard the difference between the amount paid out in fire insurance premiums and the amount collected in taxes is a loss to the city. That difference represents the net cost to the City of Edmonton of sound fire insurance protection for 27 years.

MUCH CONTRIBUTED

4-The Underwriters' Association, through its municipal protection engineers, and many other fire prevention activities, has contributed a great deal towards the favorable record in advice and in inspection service.

5-While the loss record of the insured city properties outlined in the commissioners' report has been favorable, on the other hand, the experience of the City of Edmonton public school schedule has been quite unfavorable. In spite of this fact, the City of Edmonton schools have not been penalized, but have continued to enjoy the same rate reductions accorded other cities based on the general average experience which has been much more favorable than the experience in Edmonton.

Insurance is one business in connection with which no one can accurately predetermine the costs. The fact, therefore, that the City of Edmonton properties have had a more favorable experience than average during the past few years is no assurance that the future will be equally profitable. Indeed, the very fact that the present rate is only 40 cents would indicate that the margin of profit, if any, will be very small in the future and might very easily develop into a substantial loss.

It would seem the first responsibility of the city officials is to see that the city's property is adequately and securely protected. They would not be justified in adopting any alternative which did not ensure absolute protection. All this in spite of the fact that the city's charter may authorize the creation of a sinking fund for insurance purposes.

In considering the possibility of effecting a saving through self insurance, the following should be given due consideration:

1-The establishment of a self insurance scheme involves:

a) The risk of excessive or major losses.
b) The possibility of investment loss.
c) Although the experience on the city property under discussion has proved favorable during the past twenty-seven years, on the other hand the loss experienced on the city's public school property has been quite unfavorable. There is no reason why the civic property should be more favorably affected than the schools. The possibility of a serious fire loss in Edmonton is substantiated by the many large losses that have occurred. Rocketville Centre building lately within recent years.

2-It might be mentioned that the per capita loss ratio of Edmonton is as high, if not higher, than other cities in Canada of similar size.

EIGHT MAJOR LOSSES

4-The favorable experience of the past 27 years was due in a large measure to the fact that the largest loss sustained on civic property in any one year was $38,123.50. This was not because losses in excess of this amount did not occur in the City of Edmonton. The commissioners' report lists eight major losses, ranging from as high as $30,000 which took place during the same period, indicating that losses of great magnitude do occur and are not a remote possibility.

The City of Edmonton has been more fortunate than other cities in not sustaining any major losses in its municipal property in the period under review. Other cities, however, have not been so fortunate. An outstanding case is the City of Montreal, which as far back as 1904 established a special insurance fund with annual contributions of $10,000 and by the year 1932 had grown to $200,000. In the year 1932 it suffered a total loss of the City Hall, valued at one and one-half million dollars, and in the same year, the Bonaventure Market and the Incinerator Plant were also destroyed with losses of approximately $130,000 and $30,000 respectively, and with only $200,000 to meet the loss.

The primary object of setting up a self-insurance fund is to save the taxpayers' money. An examination of the probable anticipated saving as a result of such a plan and its effect on the taxpayer is, of course, of interest to him.

The mill rate for 1943 has been fixed at 49 1/2 mills. According to reliable estimates, it will represent about $18,300. The cost of fire insurance protecting all of the property owned by the city, including street cars, hospitals, telephone exchanges, airports, stables, garages and warehouse buildings, city hall, tax sale properties, power house and pumping stations, etc., excluding public school property, has according to the city official war figures, averaged less than $25,000 per year with the cost for 1943 about $20,000.

If the proposed self-insurance plan is carried out and annual contributions of $10,000 are made to the fund, an apparent saving to the city of approximately $15,000 annually will accrue. Such a saving will result in less than 1/4 of a mill in the tax rate.

Unless some other plan than that proposed is adopted, the initial payment of $20,000 in the fund will not grow very rapidly if the average annual fire losses of the past 10 years continue in the future, because there will be barely $800 average per annum available to add to the fund. If the longer period of 27 years is taken as any criterion for the future, then instead of being added to the fund, the fire losses will more than absorb the annual contributions.

RATES STEADILY REDUCED

The foregoing facts indicate that in spite of the City of Edmonton's outlay for insurance during the past 27 years having been in excess of the losses collected, the underwriters have steadily reduced rates until they have now reached a point where even in the light of the favorable experience of the past, the rates now paid compare favorably with that now paid on other properties. It is even possible that the writers will prove that the underwriters have already reduced rates to a point below cost. On the other hand, it is conceivable that the present low rates may continue to be reduced if future experience justifies such reduction, as it has done in the past.

2,800-Mile Trek From Syria Made By Scots Guards

LONDON, July 8.—(CP)—A great 28-day, 2,800-mile trek by a battalion of Scots Guards from Syria in the Mareth Line was disclosed today by the war office.

The Guards travelled by motor transport with other units and lost only seven or eight of their hundreds of vehicles en route. They arrived in Tunisia in time to play a leading role in the successful Mareth battle on March 6, the war office said.

First authentic intimation that some of Britain's army in Iran had moved into Tunisia was given July 2 in a letter published by The London Daily Telegraph. The letter described a move of the Royal Fusiliers, a London battalion, and was accompanied by an editor's note saying "many such letters have been reaching friends from the men of various units."
